

Georgia State University, Department of Applied Linguistics

Two Year Course Projection (2022-2023)

In the chart below, you will find the courses we plan to offer over the next two years. For course offerings listed by semester, scroll down to the lists below the chart. Courses may be cancelled for lack of enrollment, and additional courses may be added if the need arises.

The TEFL certificate program is open to AL majors & minors, other undergraduates, and post baccalaureate students. If you would like to earn the TEFL certificate, you need to take the courses highlighted in green. You may additionally need to take AL 2021 (see note below).

Please note: AL 3021 Introduction to Linguistics is a prerequisite to most other upper level courses. AL 2021 is a prerequisite to AL 3021, except for post-baccalaureate students, who should request a hold release from the department to go directly to AL3021. For undergraduates, there is a free exam available to exempt the AL 2021 prereq requirement – email alugdirector@gsu.edu for exam offerings.
